ADITUM ALTERNATIVE INCOME FUND COMMENTARY

July was a strong month for markets despite the data prints reflecting weakness in the global economic growth outlook. Markets have now priced in the prospect of rate cuts in 2023 as the Federal Reserve aims to balance the fight against inflation against a weakening growth outlook.

The slight pivot in market sentiment has supported risk assets this month. In fixed income markets, Global Investment Grade assets were up 2.13% and Global High Yield up 4.65%, with US HY assets as the best performer up 6%.

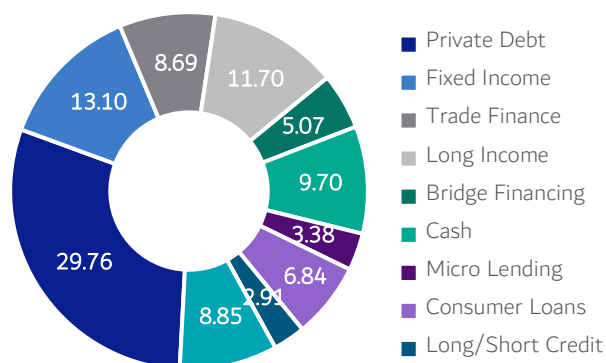

We see good entry points in the investment grade space and look to start adding duration exposure over coming weeks, although we note that volatility is likely to persist as economic data continues to cause concern and the Fed's resolve to taming inflation remaining strong.

Our alternative exposure continues to provide strong and stable returns, with global consumer loans a key performer delivering a strong return of 1.16% this month. Our exposure to this market segment is from well-structured strategies which offer good downside protection. We believe that despite the increased pressures consumers have seen over the last few months, we are beginning to see these abate slightly with oil prices decreasing and global food prices falling to January lows.

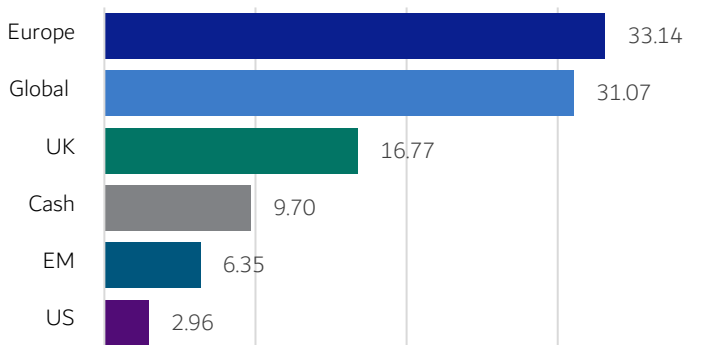

The Fund's July performance was complemented by strong performance across our liquid fixed income exposures which have benefited from the rally across risk assets.
